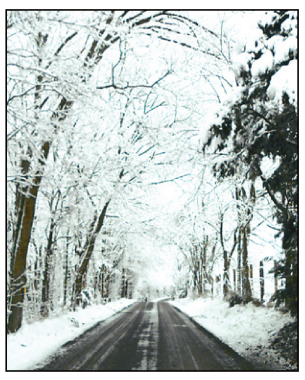
SNOW OVERLOAD



Weekend storm knocks out power to much of county

By Becky Barnes, Editor

The Friday night, Saturday morning storm that swept through Harrison County left widespread power outages.

Bluegrass Energy crews worked around the clock to restore power.

As of 11 a.m. Sunday, about 2,000 Harrison County customers of BGE remained without power, according to Barry Drury, district manager.

Barry Drury, BGE district manager said Sunday that electricity should be restored to most of the customers.

However, Monday morning, several homes were still without power.

By Monday afternoon, only about 350 customers in Harrison County were listed on Bluegrass Energy's website as being without power. And, by the ringing of the New Year, all Harrison County residents were back on.

Drury said that while some customers lost power early in the storm, others who had electricity until Saturday night was likely the result of the heavy snow falling from the lines creating a bouncing movement in the lines. Some of those may have broken from the movement while others may have kicked a breaker when the bouncing caused the hot wire to touch the ground wire.

Drury said BGE crews received assistance from five other cooperatives

28 animals seized

Animal control officers Alan Fryman and Paul Colson removed one live horse and two dead horses from the property on Antioch-Richland Road last Thursday.

A feral cat was captured inside the home that officers described as deplorable conditions.

Charges pursued for cruelty, abandonment

By Ben Hyatt, News writer

A former Harrison County woman may face multiple charges after allegedly abandoning several animals on Antioch Richland Road.

According to the Harrison County Sheriff's Department charges are being sought against Robin McElfresh-Joseph after she allegedly abandoned over 20 animals at her home on Antioch Richland Road.

"This is not the first time we have been called to investigate the well being of animals at this location," said Harrison County Sheriff's Deputy Dean Hutchison. "They have worked in the past to help get them compliant and they go right back to having issues in no time.'

According to Hutchison, several complaints were called in advising the sheriff's office that the home where the animals lived had been abandoned and the animals left to fend for themselves.

"Some of the neighbors had been feeding the animals, however, the home, in fact, did look vacant and a few dead animals were found giving us reason to remove them," said Hutchison.

Animal Control officer Alan Fryman said the conditions where the animals were living were less than acceptable.

"The sanitation was horrible," said Fryman. "We found a dead chicken and two horse carcasses at the location so we decided in the well being of the animals to remove them."

Fryman said 28 animals including, a donkey, horse, chickens, goats, rabbits, cats and a pig were removed from the location.

Charges are still pending against McElfresh-Joseph including animal cruelty and abandonment.

Batte is CPD's first female graduate

By Becky Barnes, Editor

At 30 years old, Dottie Batte believes she is exactly where she is supposed to be.

After 18 weeks of extensive training at the Department of Criminal Justice on the campus of Eastern Kentucky University, Batte graduated Dec. 21. Two days later she was in uniform with the Cynthiana Police Department.

She is the first female police officer for Cynthiana to complete the Criminal Justice program.

For the next 18 weeks she will be part of the CPD field training program, which means she will be riding with a certified police officer.

Don't be fooled by her small frame or her cheerful smile.

Batte already has a couple of arrests under her belt.

"It's one of those things that when it comes to it you have to manage the situation and go on," Batte said, adding that she doesn't worry about being taken seriously.

She graduated from Harrison County High School in 2001 and then from Western Kentucky University in 2005. Her geogra-

Charlie and Maribeth Thomas

Celebrating 25 years of business in Cynthiana

By Ben Hyatt, News writer

Leono's will ring in the new year with a 25th anniversary celebration week filled with daily specials and pizza drawings for supporting customers.

Charlie and Maribeth Thomas continue to be amazed with the overwhelming support that their local family restaurant receives year in and out.

Shortly after college in 1985, Charlie took a trip to the Ammerman's Harrison County Tobacco Warehouse to sell his tobacco but came away with more than just a check for his crop.

"Bob had come over to me and we began talking," recalled Charlie. "After he heard that I had over five years of experience in the pizza business, he asked if I would be interested in starting one with him."

Ammerman, at the time, owned a building located on US 27, just north of Church Street, which housed several previous restaurants.

After a few repairs and coordinations, The Pizza Place of Cynthiana was opened.

"It was pretty successful," said Charlie. "We had plans to expand it and make it bigger, but Bob later decided that he was not really interested in expansion at that time."

In May of 1985, Charlie left the site in order to pursue other business opportunities before coming full circle in the fall of 1987.

"Around October of 1987, Charlie approached Bob with the intentions of buying out

Big, crazy, toddler-sized faith

Nancy Kennedy

GRACE NOTES

When my youngest brother was little he loved to be tossed into the swimming pool.

We'd pick him up and throw him underhand, like lobbing a softball, into the deep end and watch him sink and then pop his head up from the surface, look for the nearest side of the pool and swim toward it.

I'm pretty sure we'd get arrested for doing that today, but 50-something years ago people did stupid stuff like that all the time. (Not to mention it wasn't even our pool. We used to hop the fence and use our neighbor's pool when they were gone, hoisting our little brother over the fence with us. I don't know where our parents were when we did this.)

I guess you could say our brother, whom we surprisingly managed not to kill, had great faith in us. Why else would he willingly want to follow us into deep water?

One could argue that a toddler can't reason, but that only makes the argument for his faith stronger. He just trusted us. Plus, it was fun.

Someone once explained faith like this: It's like standing on the edge of a cliff and stepping off, certain one of two things will happen. There will either be something solid to stand on or you will learn to fly.

Faith doesn't allow for being certain you'll go splat on the rocks.

At one time I had "stepping off the edge" faith, but that was a long time ago. When I first sensed Jesus saying, "Follow me," I knew I was willing to follow him anywhere — over the fence and into the pool.

Often I wonder what happened to that faith. Isn't faith supposed to grow? Get bigger, stronger, taller, deeper?

Does faith change? Is it supposed to?

Today I would probably go up to the fence and think, "Too high. I might get splinters climbing over it. Besides, I don't want to get my hair wet in the pool."

Is crazy, leap-off-the-cliff faith reserved for the young? Does middle-age faith slow with age just as the body slows? I don't know; that's why I'm asking.

The New Testament writer of Hebrews says faith is "being sure of what we hope for and certain of what we do not see" (Hebrews 11:1), which, frankly, is clear as mud. How can I be certain of something I can't see?

as well as several contractors.

Those without power used generators or wood heat while others were forced to find shelter with family or friends.

Cynthiana Christian Church opened its doors for those who had no power.

According to Rejeanna Craft of Harrison County Search and Rescue, two men were transported to the shelter on Saturday and were then moved to the Evergreen Motel.

While the heavy snow played havoc on the powerlines, it was the perfect storm for would-be builders of snowmen and sledders.

On Wednesday morning, several snowmen remained as centuries in the front yards of many Cynthiana homes.

The largest may very well be the 10-foot snowman built by Keene Price, Colton and Vance Kendall on Old Lair Road.

Colton Kendall, Keene Price and Vance Kendall built a 10-foot snowman at Price's Old Lair Road home after snowfall varying from 4-8 inches fell in Harrison County.

Harrison Deposit sold to The Bank of Henderson

The Bank of Henderson is expanding its financial services footprint with the acquisition of Harrison Deposit Bank of Cynthiana, effective Jan. 1.

In order to reflect the bank's regional presence, there will be a new name and brand.

As of Jan. 1, 2013, Harrison Deposit Bank will be known as BankTrust Financial Corp.

Within its corporate structure, BankTrust Financial will include its Henderson and Cynthiana commercial banking centers, its Latta Insurance Services division, and The Bank Mortgage Network, headquartered in Glasgow, Ky., which provides real estate secondary mortgage underwriting services to member banks.

According to a press release, the name will change, but the companies' culture of providing friendly, efficient customer service will not. Decision-making will continue to be made by the professional team in each market.

An announcement released last week by bank officials stated: "We have great confidence in our community bankers and will continue to empower them to make responsible decisions in the best interest of our valued customers while preserving the soundness of our institution.

"Our growth will enable BankTrust Financial to expand its services to our customers as well as offering greater growth opportunities for our financial services team.

"We believe that community banks are the financial backbone of their respective communities, and we are committed to upholding that conviction."

phy degree, she said, is associated with the mapping system on which the 911 system is based.

After first working with the Kriss Lowry planning and consulting firm in Corinth, Batte did some substitute teaching, worked at Kentucky Bank and then was hired as a 911 dispatcher for Cynthiana and Harrison County. She served as a telecommunicator for two years.

However, after six months behind the radio, Batte said she knew she wanted more.

"I wanted to be out in the community more and get to deal with people face to face," she said.

She said she would eventually like to specialize in an area of criminal justice. However, with just two weeks on the streets, she hasn't determined what that speciality should be yet.

Batte is the daughter of Kenneth and Lillie Batte and makes her home in Harrison County.

She also serves as the online chairman for the Harrison County Relay for Life.

Leono's

the business that he and Bob had started," explained Maribeth. "We bought the business and changed the name to Leono's."

Maribeth laughed when asked how the small-town restaurant came about its name.

"Charlie's middle name is Leon," laughed Maribeth. "We thought we would put the name to good use and call the place Leono's."

For the next 18 years the Thomases delighted the community with their savory dishes that became well-known beyond the lines of Harrison County.

"Those first couple of years were hard at times," said Maribeth. "Many 100 hour work weeks."

To top it all off, Charlie also managed a farm after business hours with his father, where they raised tobacco and cows.

"Time management was important," said Charlie. "Of course the business came first, but I always knew there was work still to be done when I got home from work."

Nevertheless, the two stuck with it and grew the business into a local favorite.

The sloped floors and Pac Man arcade game became signature to the small-town, family-oriented business.

However, the future of Leono's was put on the line when the two were faced with the decision in 2005 of whether to move the store or simply close it due to road construction plans.

"We had known for some time that a new bridge was going to be built and that we would have to move," said Maribeth. "We were almost debt free and the farm was paid for but God showed us that our Leono's journey was not yet over."

In 2006 the two opened the new location located at the corner of Bridge and Church streets.

"Our first customer was Bob Ammerman," said Maribeth. "We always thought that was kindda neat."

The Thomases said customers have played a major role in the success and their continued passion for serving over the years.

"We wouldn't be in business without our customers," said Maribeth. "It is humbling to know that they continue to embrace us."

Maribeth recalled some of her past employees including all of the high school and college students that have made running the business so fun.

"I used to teach math before this and I still say that I see more rewards in working with the young adults here than I did while teaching," said Maribeth.

One particular employee, Albert Jibb, has continued to work at the store since it opened.

"It is safe to say that every box that leaves this place was folded by him," laughed Maribeth. "He is our charter member and a joy to still have."

The two explained that their personalities have also played a role in their great business relationship.

"I enjoy being out front and catering to the customers," explained Maribeth. "Charlie is the behind-the-scene mastermind who fixes everything and knows how to keep the business running smoothly. We had very complimentary skills."

Maribeth and Charlie said not much has changed menu wise since the restaurant first opened for one simple reason.

"If it is not broken then don't try fixing it," said Maribeth. "We don't try to add anything that will take away from the service we try to provide."

The Thomases agreed that the two will remain right where they are until their bodies don't allow them to go any longer.

"We are happy doing what we do," said Maribeth. "We enjoy working and we have great staff that allow us to slow down our pace when we need to."

Jan. 6 through the 13, Leono's will have daily specials to celebrate the 25 years of business. Gift cards and t-shirts will also be given away during the week-long celebration.

"It is a way of saying thank you to a community that has given us so much," said the Thomas.

Remember, when the lights go out, it could be worse

Ben Hyatt
News Writer

Imagine a world where when the sun went down, the houses got dark.

Well, most of Harrison County knows how that feels after a weekend with no electric.

Last weekend, many Harrison Countians spent their time in the dark... and cold.

I awoke around 2 a.m. Saturday morning after feeling chills on my shoulders as our house dropped from its usual 68 degrees to frigid temperatures.

My wife and I usually keep the television on during the night, but for some reason, the usual Sports Center was covered by a blank screen in our temperature-dropping bedroom.

Still groggy, I fell back asleep without realizing that our electricity may not be functioning.

Not even 30 minutes later, my wife woke me asking if the power was out.

I pulled the covers back, exposing myself to the nearly freezing temperatures of the room as I stepped onto the cold wooden floor.

"Feels like I am walking on needles," I expressed to my wife.

I walked into the kitchen to check on my dog before dialing Bluegrass Energy to alert them that I had no power.

After I spoke to an automated message and told them our location and problem, I quickly jumped back into bed and waited for a miracle.

I had no idea how bad the situation was or how long it would be before we had our power back.

Abby was able to confirm through Facebook that several houses in our area had also lost power and were waiting for the same miracle that we were hoping for.

This means no Sports Center on my day off from life. No watching the new movies that I got for Christmas.

No hot water for showers or washing my warmer clothes that have been sitting in the laundry awaiting their turn to be washed.

Above all, this means my wife is in a less-than-happy mood, which only escalates the situation to its ultimate disaster waiting to show its ugly face.

We finally regained power sometime Monday afternoon.

I must say that Abby and I are very lucky that in the two years we have been married this is the first time where we have lost power for an extended amount of time.

I guess I should be thankful for that and that I have friends and family who, at the drop of a hat, called and asked if we needed a place to stay.

I am very thankful for all of the men and women who are still out in the cold working to restore power to those who are still without it.

I am thankful for not having any accidents on the road while we were traveling around.

So even though the power outage has caused significant inconvenience, it has also taught me how lucky I am and how thankful I should be.

So smile. Things can always be worse.

Heavy snowfall Friday and Saturday made for a winter wonderland on Boyers Chapel.

'An imperfect solution' to prevent very real financial pain

Editor's note: U.S. Senate Republican Leader Mitch McConnell made the following remarks on the Senate floor Tuesday regarding the status of the fiscal cliff negotiations:

"It's late, so I'll be very brief. I want to thank everyone for their patience and their counsel throughout this process.

"I also want to thank the Vice President for recognizing the importance of preventing this tax hike on the American people and stepping up to play a crucial role in getting us there.

"It shouldn't have taken this long to come to an agreement, and this shouldn't be the model for how we do things around here, but I appreciate his willingness to get this done for the country.

"I know I can speak for my entire conference when I say we don't think taxes should be going up on anyone, but we all knew that if we did nothing they'd be going up on everyone today. We weren't going to let that happen.

"Each of us could spend the rest of the week discussing what a perfect solution would have looked like, but the end result would have been the largest tax increase in American history.

"The President wanted tax increases, but thanks to this imperfect agreement, 99% of my constituents won't be hit by those hikes.

"So it took an imperfect solution to prevent our constituents from very real financial pain. But in my view, it was worth the effort.

"As I said, this shouldn't be the model for how to do things around here. But I think we can say we've done some good for the country. We've taken care of the revenue side of this debate.

"Now it's time to get serious about reducing Washington's out-of-control spending. That's a debate the American people want. It's the debate we'll have next. And it's a debate Republicans are ready for."

Safety is first priority in country's gun debate

Reprinted from the Kentucky New Era

The mass shooting of 20 children and six adults inside a Newtown, Conn., elementary school days before their Christmas holiday is now the frame for a national debate about violence, gun laws and mental health. The goal for everyone in this debate should be a safer and saner country — especially for our children. Achieving this goal is difficult on its own. It's made more difficult by extreme positions from people who claim to have simple solutions. And it's complicated by an attitude from others that nothing will ever reduce mass shootings in this country.

Let's at least agree there are no simple solutions to reducing gun violence.

Then, let's respect that the 2nd Amendment guarantees Americans the right to own firearms. The vast majority of gun owners in this country are responsible with their firearms. They use them for hunting and personal protection. That shouldn't change. But we do need to search for reasonable ways to address the problem of mass shootings because it happens too often and because we should never again mourn the deaths of first-graders who were gunned down at their school.

Much of the debate today hinges on the National Rifle Association's call for an armed guard in every school in America. Wayne LaPierre, the CEO for the country's largest and most powerful gun-rights organization, announced the NRA's position in a news conference that did not allow questions from news organizations that covered the conference.

Americans do rely on police officers with guns to keep many of us safe in our public places, so LaPierre's proposal is not, as some have argued, outrageous or ridiculous. But LaPierre did overstate the potential of armed school guards when he said only armed guards would keep children safe in schools. Remember, there was an armed security worker inside Columbine High School.

Even NRA members and some of Congress' most prominent supporters of our 2nd Amendment rights disagree with the idea of arming a security guard in every school in America. It will not stop determined and deranged shooters in all cases.

Fourteen mass shootings occurred in the United States this year. There were 83 people killed, not including nine shooters who in died in those cases.

In the Newtown shooting, the gunman fired multiple rounds from a Bushmaster AR-15 semi-automatic rifle. He carried several clips of ammunition. This is a military-style rifle, and investigators have confirmed that the shooter's mother bought the rifle legally. From 1994 to 2004, it was illegal in the United States to sell this type of weapon.

It is reasonable to question if these types of weapons, capable of firing large amounts of ammunition in a short time frame, should be legal in this country. These are offensive weapons.

We often hear people say, "Guns don't kill people. People kill people." Fair enough, but the issue here is how a particular type of weapon will make it easier to kill large numbers of people. People who own firearms for hunting and protection can achieve both with handguns, rifles and shotguns that are not designed to quickly fire many rounds of ammunition.

We could also argue that semi-trucks don't kill people; it's the drivers who kill people. And we do restrict who may drive larger vehicles through special licensing.

The type of weapons that we allow people to buy legally in this country is a large part of this debate, but we should not discount other factors, including all types of entertainment and news media that elevate and extol gun violence, our limited access to mental health care and the number of children who do not have loving parents and good role models.

Trunk damage can girdle trees

Jeneen Wiche
Columnist
www.SwallowRailFarm.com

The farm looks like a storm hit recently but it's really just my husband's new deer deterrent technique.

It seems to be working.

In the past we have forgone the Irish Spring soap, human hair and coyote urine for more reliable barriers. Tomato cages, tobacco stakes, wire, spiral plastic trunk wrap, and, yes, an occasional arrangement of lawn chairs have created distance between rutting and browsing deer.

This year does not seem as bad as year's past.

I think it is the barking Maremma livestock guardian dog out in the pasture.

We have protected trees, none the less, especially any newly planted in 2012.

I like the country and the deer that roam about, but I do not like damage to trees so we have a system.

Their hunger sometimes rips trees from the ground; other times they just do a sloppy pruning job.

Their rutting is the worst as the bucks practice their battle moves on the small trunks of young trees, scraping the bark clean off.

If only one side is damaged we wait; if the entire circumference is gone then we have learned to remove it and move on.

They never recover no matter how patient we are. When the bark and cambium layer of a tree is removed all the way around then the tree is essentially girdled.

No movement of moisture or nutrients will pass the wound.

So, our new technique to protect trees (since we have run out of all the other devices previously mentioned) is to pile broken branches, twigs and Christmas tree boughs around the base of the trunk. We prop some against the trunk and lay the rest around the base to create somewhat of a cattle guard.

So far, so good, but it does look funny.

Even if you don't have deer pressure in the garden there are other circumstances that can result in a similar girdling effect.

Rodents chewing the bark off at the base of the trunk can result in dieback.

When trees are girdled at the base like this they sometimes sucker from the roots. If the roots are well-established and healthy then I would train one of the suckers as a new main leader; but this time put some wrap or barrier around the base.

When using conventional tree wrap it is important to remove it in the spring.

Oddly enough, a southwestern exposure during the winter can cause some damage. Sun scald is common during winters when the temperature fluctuates dramatically night and day.

A frigid night followed by a warmish, sunny day causes the bark to split open.

If there is an elongated split on the southwest side (where the sun is) then you likely have a case of sunscald.

A healthy tree can compartmentalize the wound and heal; but trees under stress may find that one more injury is the straw that broke the camel's back.

Tree wrap and plastic spirals can offset sunscald but, again, remember to remove the protection in the spring.

Girdling of roots can also cause problems for a tree, but this damage takes place beneath the soil where we can't see the problem.

In fact, trees that are planted too deep (which are probably the majority) have a higher incidence of girdled roots; and container-grown trees may develop girdle roots in the pot.

So, when you plant a tree check the roots thoroughly for any roots that appear to be wrapped around the base of the trunk or other roots.

Do not be afraid to cut these roots away even if they seem larger than the other roots.

Kennedy

Noah spent 100 years building a giant boat in the desert expecting a flood, even though he had never even seen it rain before.

Instead of getting a golf cart and a condo at a Florida retirement community, the Bible tells of senior citizens Abraham and Sarah spending their golden years setting up a nursery in anticipation of a baby God had promised them. Both they and Noah had crazy faith, faith that believes the impossible is more than possible and that God specializes in impossible situations. That's the faith of grand visions and glorious dreams.

Other places in the Bible illustrate faith as actions borne of desperation: a mother begging Jesus for mercy for her demon-possessed daughter, a Roman soldier asking Jesus to heal his paralyzed servant, a blind man asking to see and a leper asking to be made whole.

That kind of faith happens when you've exhausted all your own resources and options, when you've done all you could and nothing has worked.

It's when you realize you have nowhere else to go except to God and even though you may do it trembling, you reach out your hand with hope, even if it's mixed with doubt, expecting him to be there — and he is, and he pulls you in and up and holds you close.

I believe that God meets us where we are and accepts our faith no matter how big or how small, whether it's toddler-sized, running-to-the-fence-eager-to-be-tossed-in-the-water faith, barely-there faith or something in between.

Maybe faith is like a muscle. Maybe when crazy faith shrivels to barely-there faith it just needs to be exercised. I don't know.

I do know, however, that Jesus said all anyone needs is faith the size of a mustard seed — teeny, puny, tentative, shaky, doubting faith in a God who calms the most violent storms with just a word.

Jesus said that kind of teeny faith in a gigantic God moves the tallest mountains. That kind of teeny faith heals broken hearts and broken lives, changes the hardest hearts — maybe even mine.

I have that kind of faith. Maybe some day it'll grow or maybe it won't. Either way, I know the faith I have is all I need.

Just knowing that actually makes my faith grow a tiny bit, so there's hope even for me.

Breds split four, finish 6th at Lake Cumberland Classic

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

Poor free throw shooting in the fourth quarter Sunday sent the Harrison County Thorobreds down to a 65-59 defeat to Rowan County and sixth place in the Lake Cumberland Holiday Hoops Classic.

The Breds had previously defeated Louisville Southern, 67-41, and Louisville Manual, 65-64, while losing to Somerset, 66-48, in the four day tournament.

The Classic began on Thursday night with the game against the Trojans of Louisville Southern.

This game was close for the first half as Southern's senior guard Randell Pickett scored 18 of his game-high 21 points in the opening half.

Harrison County led by seven points 35-28 at the half after trailing by a 12-10 score after one period.

Key turnovers got to the Trojans in the second half, which gave the Thorobreds some easy baskets and caused Southern to commit fouls.

Harrison County shot 32 free throws for the game making only 11 while Southern attempted only seven free throws.

Harrison County put three players in double figures with junior Dillon Pulliam leading the way with 17.

Senior Tyler Wagner added 13 and fellow senior Jordan Stubbs scored 11. Wagner also was the leading rebounder for Harrison County with six while Elijah Gross, Jordan Martin and Grant Carr each had five boards.

The loss left Southern with a 7-7 season record.

The Friday opponent was the Somerset Briar Jumpers on their home floor.

Somerset entered with an impressive 8-2 record after defeating Danville, 49-41, in the opening round of the Classic.

The Thorobreds showed some early game jitters as they turned the ball over six times in the first period while the Jumpers were hitting on 3 of 5 behind the arc to jump out to an 18-14 first quarter lead.

The Somerset big people, 6-foot-8 Ryan Weddle and 6-foot-5 Tyson Williams, caused some of the Breds ills as they altered shots underneath the basket pushing their team out to as much as a 10-point lead in the second period.

The Breds fought back to cut the lead to nine at half-time, 33-24.

Harrison County's shooting skills left them in the third period as the visiting Breds hit on only four of 18 from the field in the opening period of the second half.

Solid Harrison County defense held Somerset back though and going into the final period Harrison County only trailed by 10 at 45-35.

Somerset scored the first six points of the fourth period, however, and put the Breds away by the final 66-48 margin.

Stubbs had 14 points for the game while Pulliam was the only other Bred in double figures with10.

Weddle looked like an all star in this game with a 21-point, 12-rebound effort to lead Somerset.

Saturday's Louisville Manual versus Harrison County match up was one with two teams that were disappointed in the last game they played.

Disappointed not so much in the loss but in the margin of defeat as both Manual and Harrison County

Thorobred wrestlers battle teams from three states in Tennessee tournament

HCMS fifth in 16-team duals

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

The youthful Harrison County wrestling team spent the pre-Christmas weekend wrestling against teams from Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia in a tournament held near Knoxville.

The Breds finished with one victory and four losses as they were matched against veteran teams from the tri-state area.

The Thorobreds lost to two teams where they were within one match of turning the defeat into a team victory. Both Alcoa and Dobyns Bennett, Tenn., edged Harrison County, Alcoa by 40-36 and Dobyns Bennett by 47-41.

The other two Harrison County defeats were 58-18 to Calhoun, Ga., and 63-18 to the host school, Science Hill, Tenn.

The Thorobreds beat Hidden Valley, Va., handily by a 51-25 score.

Eighth grader Michael Mattox was the only undefeated wrestler for Harrison County as he was 5-0 for the tournament.

Junior Mason Fryman was 4-1 while three other Thorobreds grapplers were 3-2 for the day. Freshmen Colin Coy and Chase Highlander and sophomore Noah Mitchell each won one more match than they lost in the afternoon battles.

Coach Luke Tucker recognized the efforts of several of his squad.

"Fryman and Mattox were very impressive," he observed. "Highlander did well especially wrestling up two weight classes and Coy continues to do well as a freshman."

The next event for the Thorobreds will be on Saturday, Jan. 5, at the Simon Kenton Duals.

Last weekend's Harrison County Invitational was cancelled due to the snow.

The Harrison County Middle School held the annual HCMS Duals on Saturday, Dec. 22, in the gymnasium.

The middle school squad finished fifth of 12 teams in the tournament winning two of three matches.

Top finishers for the Colts were 75 lb Brent Hudgins in second place, 80lb John Schreiber, 86 lb Tyler Hudgins, and 98 lb T.J. Rowland each in fourth place, and 190 lb Jonathan Lanter in fifth place.

Young Fillies lose three in Bourbon tournament

By Mike Aldridge, Sports writer

The Harrison County Fillies continued their early season struggles on Friday and Saturday as they dropped games to Shelby Valley, Dixie Heights and Middletown, Ohio.

Shelby Valley brought an 8-1 record into the tournament being regarded by most as the best team in the 15th Region.

They did nothing to make anyone think differently as they used the strength of four three pointers in the first quarter to sprint out to a 20-5 lead and were never threatened in the 70-38 win.

Only three Fillies scored in the contest led by junior Jordan Doram's 26-point, 11-rebound effort.

Eighth grader Taylor Reffett scored eight points and freshman Madison Philpot scored four to round out the Fillies scoring.

The coach's daughter, sophomore Taylor Rowe, led the winner's scoring with 17 followed by freshman Lakyn Mullins with 15 and senior Breanna Fraley with 10.

Shelby Valley finished the Lady Colonel's tournament with an 11-2 record.

Dixie Heights, 3-8, was the next opponent for the Fillies, which was a rematch of Dec. 15's game at Harrison County won by the Lady Colonels, 56-46.

This game was close with the Fillies leading by one at the half, 16-15.

Harrison County then extended the lead to 10 points at the end of the third period 31-21, but could not hold on managing only four points in the fourth period.

Dixie Heights put up a 17-point total in the last period to win the game, 38-35.

Doram's 12 points led the Fillies with sophomore Chelsea Ingram adding 10. Dixie Heights did not have a scorer in double figures as they were led by junior Molly Diamon's eight points.

Dixie Heights ended the tournament with a 5-8 record.

The Fillies went into the final game of the tournament facing an unknown team from Middletown, Ohio.

A slow start doomed Harrison County early in this contest as the Ohio team jumped out to an 18-6 first quarter lead.

The Fillies, led by nine points from Doram and seven from Philpot in the second period, cut the lead to 38-31 at the half but could not sustain the rally and fell by a 77-61 score.

Doram again led the Fillies with another double-double scoring 28 points and grabbing 14 rebounds.

Sophomore guard Kassidy Cook came off the bench to score 13 as the Fillies placed two players in double figures.

Senior forward Vada Edwards led the Middletown girls with 23 points including nine in the pivotal final period.

The tournament ended with the Fillies holding a 1-12 season record.

Coach Kim Furnish spoke after the tournament about the season to date as well as the tournament.

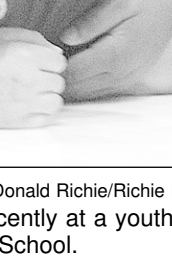
New Year's resolutions



Mike Aldridge
Sports Writer

When you get to be my age there have been many chances to make great and meaningful changes/improvements at the beginning of the year.

I never have been able to resolve to lose weight, quit swearing etc., so this year all of my resolutions are going to be sports related.

The first one would be easy for some people but has always been hard for me.

That will be to continue to follow a sport after "my team" is eliminated.

For example, after the Cardinals lost in the playoffs last year I did not watch one pitch of the World Series.

I didn't watch the NCAA tournament after Indiana lost.

Football is the one exception to that rule, but next year, I resolve to stay up to date even if I don't really care who wins.

The most difficult resolution that I am going to try is one suggested numerous times by my good friend Chuck Duffy.

Chuck has told me many times that I need to try and become part of the community where I live and not just hold on to my core beliefs.

What he means by this is instead of only being for the Cardinals or the Steelers and Indiana, that I should try to have more concern about the success or failure of the Reds, Bengals and UK.

So this year, I will not automatically be for whoever plays this trio and take it one game at a time.

My biggest change is going to be in how I look at sports and other things.

I am going to be more positive and not think of the worst that can happen.

For instance, if the baseball team would start out the season slowly I will not be a gloom and doom guy and wonder if we will win the district.

That is not a good example probably since the baseball team starting slowly generally doesn't happen, but you get my point.

I am also going to try to find more personal interest stories like I started last year.

John Michael Reitz, Cameron Whitaker's new job in Dayton and Donna Stephens' son (I believe) who is a tennis player of note will be a few articles that I plan to tackle plus others.

I am always open to information about people from our area that are elsewhere doing well.

Happy New Year to everyone and the best of health for all in 2013.

Breds

From BREDS page 7

were soundly defeated on Friday.

Manual came into the game with a 7-6 record owning a victory over Mayfield in the tournament as well as a 76-51 loss to Southwestern.

Manual took an early lead on the Breds holding a 15-9 lead at the end of the first period.

During this and the early part of the second period, the Thorobreds were playing man-to-man on defense and were having difficulty stopping the Louisville squad.

Harrison County switched to a two/three zone and turned the game around especially in the third period when the Thorobreds out-scored Manual by 18-11 and took a four-point lead into the fourth period.

Manual took advantage of some shoddy ball handling and strange clock operations in the final stanza, but Harrison County held on for a 65-64 win and a date with Rowan County's Vikings on Sunday.

Pulliam again led the Breds in scoring with 13 followed by Stubbs with 12 and Scott Kendall with 11.

Pulliam was also the leading rebounder for Harrison County with six.

Senior Andy Tillman led the Crimson scoring with a game high 22 points.

This game featured the only decent free throw shooting performance of the tournament for Harrison County as the Breds hit on 16 of 19 from the line.

Sunday the Breds ran out of gas at the end and missed five of seven fourth quarter free throws in the 65-59 loss to Rowan County.

The game was close throughout with Rowan County holding the largest lead of 12 points midway through the second period only to see the Breds score 14 straight to take the 32-30 lead and carry a 36-34 lead into the halftime break.

Harrison County led the game at three of the four quarter stops the end of the fourth quarter being the exception.

For the game, the glaring difference was the foul shooting as both teams attempted 21 with Harrison County connecting on 12 and Rowan County making 16 of 21 including eight of nine in the closing period.

The game came down to the last part of the fourth period when the Vikings took the lead with five minutes to play at 55-54.

From that point until one and one half minutes left, the Breds took three quick three-point attempts, missed a good field goal try and made one of two free throws.

Meanwhile the score went to 61-55 in favor of Rowan County as the Breds did play some good defense causing Viking turnovers.

Carr made a three pointer with 1:25 left to cut the lead to three at 61-58.

Rowan County missed a field goal and a free throw on the next two trips down the floor but Harrison County was only able to connect on one of three from the line to make the score 61-59 with 30 seconds to play.

Rowan County made four free tosses to end the game while Harrison County missed a field goal attempt and two more free throws to go down to their fifth defeat in 13 tries.

Coach Larry Kendall was not willing to place all of the blame on playing four games in four days.

"We missed crucial free throws and made some key turnovers," said the first year head coach. "The second group played well when they were in so we will be re-evaluating who we are playing at certain times. Maybe I am playing the wrong people."

The Breds are home on Friday to face the Polar Bears of Bracken County (3-10) then travel to Paris (1-11) on Saturday before returning home on Tuesday night to face the improving Cardinals of George Rogers Clark (5-9).

Fillies

From FILLIES page 7

"The girls had a great opportunity to play against some quality competition and to watch others and learn more about the game. We are not pleased with the record to date, but feel like some progress is being made by several of the players. We are certainly not giving up on this team," she went on to emphasize.

"Jordan is getting to be more confident with her ball handling and is averaging a double-double for the season, Furnish added. "She is our leader and one of the better players in the region. Taylor is getting stronger and is improving very much especially on the defensive end. Madison is getting back to where she was last year and will continue to improve. Kayla Ford is becoming a force for us and is earning more and more playing time. Kassidy and Chelsea have got to become more consistent with their play and their ability to play more disciplined. All of the girls need to play with more confidence and be less hesitant. Hesitation is an enemy of successful play."

Furnish commented on the 2013 schedule as a battle with regional opponents.

"We are going to continue to work hard and to put the players on the floor that will play together, be aggressive and do what the coaches ask of them," she noted. "We can still be a team to contend with in the tournament."

The Fillies travel to Bracken County on Thursday to battle the 8-2 Lady Bears with the junior varsity at 6 p.m. followed by the varsity game.

• WHY do I need a colonoscopy?
Colon cancer is the third leading cause of cancer death in the United States. This may be because there are no symptoms during the early stages of the disease when treatment is most effective. Experts say that colon cancer deaths are 90% preventable.
• WHEN do I need a colonoscopy?
Screening tests that detect the disease are recommended every five years, beginning at age 50 (age 45 for African-Americans.) Speak to your physician if you have a family history of colon cancer.
Dr. Robbins uses the latest technology, carbon dioxide (CO2) insufflation, which can reduce patient pain and abdominal discomfort during and after the colonoscopy.
Schedule an appointment with Dr. Robbins by calling 859.266.7999. A referral from your primary care physician is not necessary unless insurance requires it.
